Recanae his sister Annie had sworn to a warrant accusing their father, Asbury r turn of the old man from town and shot him dead in the stable in the rear of the Hatfield home, near Elizabethtown, Ky. It was not known by the boy on what charge his father had been arrested us til after the officers had taken him to the county seat, when he learned from his sister's lips that she had caused his arrest because of her father's actions. Her brother swore to be avenged. Hat-field, ar, was released on bail. Later his body was found in the barn, with a oullet hole through his head. The boy has not yet been streeted, and it is said neighbors will secure ball for him and stify in his behalf at the trial. The alleged revolting crime of the elder Hatfield aroused the entire country when it
